1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a wiring board (a wiring board with circuit patterns formed thereon) and a manufacturing method therefor. 2. Description of the Related Art The wiring board with circuit patterns formed thereon as a printed wiring board is used for a mounting board of various electronic components such as a semiconductor device, and is exposed to various stress when assembled with the electronic components. For example, in a case of forming inner leads provided in the wiring board with the circuit patterns, an inner lead forming step of forming a wiring for connecting an outer lead with the inner lead, and the like are performed in addition to the formation of the circuit patterns (for example, refer to Japanese Laid-open Patent Publication No. 2004-018693). However, when the outer lead is formed with the inner lead, the inner lead is exposed to the outside by the steps of forming the circuit pattern, forming the inner lead, and the like. Therefore, it is necessary to prevent a short circuit between the exposed inner leads. Therefore, it has been proposed that a plating film is formed on the inner lead, and a coating resin is filled in the clearance between the inner lead and an inner lead portion formed with the inner lead, and then heated to cure (for example, Japanese Laid-open Patent Publication No. 2004-135803). However, in recent years, since the wiring width of the inner lead is generally narrowed, and the like, a short circuit between the inner leads becomes easy to occur. The short circuit between the inner leads is caused by short-circuiting between the inner leads due to the flowing of a resin in the step of filling the resin between the inner leads, a short-circuiting between the inner leads due to the flowing of the resin during the formation of the plating film, and the like, the flowing of the resin between the inner leads and the bending of the inner leads due to the heating. Therefore, the present invention has been completed to solve the problem of the above-described short circuit between the inner leads due to the flowing of the resin. There are a number of liquid compositions which are used to treat surfaces and components in an automobile to reduce the number of oil and grease spills from a vehicle, which are often visible to passersby, and minimize the amount of oil and grease which travels from the vehicle to surrounding surfaces. The pollution problems of spilled motor oil have reached the point where many municipalities and states have enacted
