Published: July 13, 2007 Reviewed by Kara Plakaitis Rating: Every woman needs a good man, a man to set the world straight. A man she can rely on to have her back, and love her. And then there's Lachlan Walker, the man who just may be that man. Some women are born lucky, and some achieve their dreams through hard work. Some have it all, and some have nothing. And then there are the Traverses. Lachlan is the twin brother of James, the king of college boys. He's also the younger brother of Max, the most sought-after bachelorette in the country. And he's well-known for the "sugar daddy" status he enjoys with the women he "dotes on" (his mother calls them "platonic" relationships), while his brother is notorious for his womanizing ways. When Max meets Claire Collins, a divorcee with two kids, he finds himself instantly attracted to her. But when he asks Max to be his man of honor, he finds Max challenging him to a duel of a different kind. James and Lachlan find themselves having to set things right, but what starts as a game of truth and lies soon becomes far more than that. Their ultimate challenge may be their love, but the risk is too great. "If you really want something in life, you will find a way to get it, even if it means toil, dedication and, perhaps, pain." - Lachlan Walker "Don't trust a sugar daddy." - James A very funny and heartfelt story about love, trust, and friendship.
